Germany Demands Complete Revision Versailles Treaty

Von Papen Presents Case at Lausanne Conference

CONFERENCE FAILS Delegates Leaving Wednesday—Debts, Reparations Unsolved

LOUSANNE, Switzerland—(AP)—Franz von Papen, German chancellor, laid before the powers at the war debts and reparations conference here Wednesday a demand for revision of the Versailles treaty as a necessary preliminary to German participation in the economic reconstruction of the world.

In a statement to the press, the chancellor demanded that all discrimination against Germany be revised out of the treaty.

Barring some unusual development, the debts and reparations conference will break up late Wednesday, a complete failure.

MacDonald Has Failed
The best efforts of Ramsay MacDonald, British premier, to bring together Premier Herriot of France and Chancellor von Papen of Germany have failed, France holding out for payment of reparations, and Germany for cancellation.

The Germans demanded uncanceled cancellation of the French claim to reparations today, withdrawing the idea of economic compensation and a common cash box into which Germany would pay sums when she was financially able.

Premier Herriot told the press that France was willing to cede her rights to reparations for economic advantages and in the interest of peace and security, but it was evident that Chancellor von Papen since Sunday, when he conferred with his cabinet in Berlin, was unable to accept anything but out and out cancellation.

May Meet Next Fall
With adjournment of the present meeting, a second conference is expected to be called next fall, with the intervening months given over to possible adjustment of differences between the various powers.

Nations represented at the Pousanne conference are: Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Belgium and Japan.

Mrs. Dall Visitor in Arkansas Group

Daughter of Governor Roosevelt Is Guest of Delegates

CHICAGO—(AP)—Mrs. Curtis Dall, daughter of Governor Roosevelt, visited the Arkansas delegation Wednesday, at which time it was announced that Arkansas probably had more women delegates and alternates than any other state.

Mrs. Dall was introduced by Miss Alice Cordell, of El Dorado, as the daughter of the next president; and Mrs. Dall responded, saying she was especially pleased to visit a delegation so enthusiastic in support of her father for the nomination.

Chicken Thief Is Given Jail Term

26 Chickens Spell Trouble for Willie Logan, in City Court

Willie Logan, Hope negro, will not steal any more chickens for awhile. Municipal Judge U. A. Gentry made that plain when the negro was arraigned in court Tuesday afternoon on two separate charges of petit larceny.

The first charge was for stealing 11 chickens from A. R. Simmons, and the second, for taking 15 chickens from V. C. Johnston, farmers living three miles southeast of Hope.

Unable to pay $15 and costs on each charge, Logan was committed to the Washington jail to serve time on the two fines.

The negro was caught in a chicken-coop raid Monday night when he and two negro companions attempted to take several chickens from the henhouse of Mr. Johnston. The other two negroes escaped.

Two negro women, Essie Mae Stanley and Beulah Jones, were fined $1 and cost on a charge of fighting, by Judge Gentry.

Lindbergh Dared Storm For Baby

Trial Reveals Colonel Once Started to Swim to "Kidnap Boat"

FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was described in testimony Wednesday as having at one time tried to leap into a stormy sea to swim to a boat on which he believed his kidnapped baby was held for ransom.

As this statement was made, Lindbergh, seated at the prosecution's table, laughingly made some remark to the man next to him.

W. E. Haskell, newspaper executive, was on the stand, at the third day's session of the trial of John Hughes Curtis, charged with harboring police in the Lindbergh kidnapping case by perpetrating a hoax.

When the prosecutor asked Haskell what Curtis told him of Lindbergh's efforts to swim to the alleged kidnap boat, Haskell replied that Curtis told him he saw Lindbergh sighted the boat, but high seas prevented their getting very close and he had to restrain Colonel Lindbergh from jumping overboard to swim to the other ship.

Hearing Scheduled For Negro Slayer

Alonzo Martin to Be Arraigned Wednesday at Fulton

A preliminary hearing for Alonzo Jackson, negro, for the fatal shooting of Willie Martin, Fulton negro, was to be held Wednesday afternoon at Fulton.

Martin died of a shotgun wound Sunday afternoon, inflicted by Jackson after the two fought in a railroad car at Fulton early Sunday morning.

The shooting grew out of a quarrel over the disappearance of a 12-pound sack of flour.

Deputy Prosecuting Attorney John Vesey will represent the state. C. A. Shipp was the arresting officer.

Traylor Is "Dark Horse"

Banker of Chicago Born in Log Cabin in Kentucky Hills

Democratic Possibility Born Within 40 Miles of Lincoln

FIRST WAS TEACHER

Now Heads 600-Million-Dollar Financial Institution

By ROBERT TALLEY

NEA Service Writer
CHICAGO—For months past no discussion of 1932 presidential possibilities has been complete without mention of the name of Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago.

Nobody seems to know where the Traylor boom started. Like Topsy, it appears to have "just grown. No body knows what's behind it. He has no political organization, was never elected to any office except that of assistant county attorney in the Texas cow country 30 years ago.

Yet, Traylor is being seriously discussed today as a possible "dark horse" choice for the Democratic presidential nomination.

By all the copybook maxims, Traylor has a right to be president. He was born in a log cabin. His parents were poor. He struggled for an education, worked his own way to the top. He is a selfmade and highly successful man—at the peak of a career that folks like to call "typically American."

As the Democratic convention neared its opening, he loomed as the "dark horse" of them all.

His puzzling political strength today may possibly be attributed to his rise to the presidency of the First National Bank here, one of the 10 largest banks in the United States, where he directs the destinies of $600,000,000. He was given the president's job seven years ago when he was just 47 years old. The institution has since grown to its present size.

Born in Cabin
That log cabin in which Traylor was born on October 21, 1878, stood in the mountains in Adair county, Kentucky, only 40 miles from Lincoln's birthplace. It had two rooms, a wood fire-place. It had two rooms, a wood fire-place. It had two rooms, a wood fire-place.

Car Is Recovered By Ozan Officer

Constable Carrigan Returns Auto to O. F. Ruggles Here

Hope officers Wednesday were checking up on the whereabouts of an unidentified white man who stole a coupe automobile belonging to O. F. Ruggles.

The car was taken from its parking place in front of Sander's Grocery store about 8 o'clock Tuesday night.

Constable Bob Carrigan, of Ozan, who had been notified, met the stolen car and its driver a few miles this side of Ozan. When hailed by the officer the driver came to a sudden stop and escaped before Mr. Carrigan could halt his own car. The automobile was recovered.

Mr. Ruggles was in Ozan Wednesday to return the car and to locate some articles and several milk bottles that he had left in the automobile.

Agreement Is Near Brought Advocates

Section to Avoid Hoover Veto

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The congressional conferees neared agreement Wednesday on the controversial public works program of the $2,300,000 relief bill.

No formal agreement has been reached, but the conferees said the discussion was centered on the 1/2-billion-dollar public works program of the senate bill—and an understanding "is not far off."

President Hoover has denounced this section of the bill, interpreted by some as foreshadowing his veto.

Dr. Hammock is a former resident of Hope. He moved from this city a number of years ago.

Senatorial Candidate Comes to Hope for Address Tuesday

Former Governor Charles H. Brough, campaigning for the senate, spoke at Hope city hall Tuesday night, being introduced by Steve Carrigan.

Dr. Brough launched immediately into the subject of ways and means to relieve the present depression. He said three things would have to be done: (1) the gold standard abolished; (2) silver-using nations of the earth, so as to save our export markets; (3) the tariff walls lowered, the Hawley-Smoot tariff law repealed, in order to stop retaliation against our country by such nations as Canada and Mexico, which are boycotting the purchase of American goods; (4) a radical reduction in the expenses of government, the abolition of useless offices, bureaus, and commissions, and the lowering of the intolerable burdens of taxation, amounting in Arkansas to $67.03 for every man, woman, and child in the state, beside all the federal taxes.

Dr. Brough said that Bryan was right in 1896 when he exclaimed that "the gold standard would press upon the neck of labor a crown of thorns and cruelty, marking on a cross of gold."

"We have killed the goose that lays the golden egg by adhering to a monetary system that has made the rich richer and the poor poorer," Dr. Brough said, "so that now 58 families in the United States control 36 per cent of all of our wealth. The borrowing classes have been made hewers of wood and drawers of water, and it takes 4 1/4 cents of cotton to pay a debt now that when contracted could have been paid with one bale of cotton. Money is steadily appreciating in value and all commodities are constantly falling in price, making us the victims of the money power, and absolutely helpless to grant the 385 existence and cultural wants which the average human being has."

"Our huge credit superstructure rests on a point—it is an inverted pyramid, which topples at every stock market crash and whenever the winds of credit begin to blow. Our provincial tariff system has cost us two billion dollars worth of foreign trade in the last two years, and all American export commodities, such as cotton, fruit, lumber, sewing machines, wheat, corn, oats, potatoes, are barred from the foreign markets."

"While this financial debacle exists, our taxes are constantly getting higher, by virtue of the fact that one out of every twelve American citizens is either an office holder or obtains some fee or commission. The federal, state, and local governments of our nation now owe forty-seven billion dollars."

Roosevelt Takes Tri-Motor Plane For Chicago Trip

At Chicago, Farley Demanded Move to Get Traylor to Withdraw

TRAYLOR STAYS IN

Alleged Offer From Roosevelt Camp Is Called "Ridiculous"

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Democratic platform committee late Wednesday voted overwhelmingly to commit the party in favor of prohibition repeal.

The vote was 35 to 17. The platform committee first voted down the majority report for the prohibition repeal plank, 35 to 18, and then the repeal plank was then endorsed.

ALBANY, N. Y.
(AP)—A tri-motor airplane, fueled and with two crack pilots standing by Wednesday afternoon at the Albany airport to fly Governor Roosevelt to the Chicago Democratic National Convention.

Waiting on the platform committee's report, the Democratic National Convention convened nearly an hour late Wednesday, and resumed immediately. The platform report was expected at 2 p. m.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Roosevelt's headquarters promptly disavowed Wednesday any connection with an attempt attributed by Frank Scott, publisher for Melvin Traylor, to have Traylor withdraw from the campaign.

Scott said a man describing himself as a Roosevelt supporter offered him $10,000 to withdraw the candidacy of the Illinois man.

James A. Farley, Roosevelt's manager, called it a ridiculous story. Traylor said he would not withdraw.

Platform Delayed
CHICAGO—(AP)—The Democratic platform committee sent word to Chairman Walsh that it would not be ready to report to the convention until about 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The committee overwhelmed several amendments offered by Governor Murray of Oklahoma to broaden the party declaration on silver.

Meanwhile, James A. Farley, Roosevelt campaign manager, said that Governor Roosevelt would leave the convention to write his own prohibition plank.

Balloting on Thursday
The convention is expected to get down to the business of balloting for the presidential nomination Thursday.

The leading contender, Franklin D. Roosevelt, showed a uniform strength above 500 votes on three tests Tuesday, when his forces seated friendly delegates from Louisiana and Minnesota.

Bavaria Threatens to Revolt If Crown Prince Comes Back

BY MILTON BRONNER

NEA European Manager

BERLIN—If the Von Papen-Von Schleicher government of Germany succeeds in its reputed plan to restore the throne and place ex-Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm thereon, that action may be the rock on which a united Germany will crash.

Leaders in Bavaria, the most important of the south German states, are already talking of the possibility of re-establishing their country in its former independent status.

Their plan, as outlined in Bavarian newspapers, is to elect or appoint Prince Rupprecht, their ex-crown prince, as president or regent of their new government.

They would invite Baden and Wurttemberg, other important states in south Germany, to join them, thus forming a nation the size of Ohio with a population of more than 13,000,000, or more than New York state.

This idea is not so far-fetched as it might seem. Bavaria, Baden and Wurttemberg have been units in the national German government for only 60 years or so, or since the German empire was organized after the Franco-Prussian War in 1871.

South Germany is Catholic and rural. Prussia and its natural allies are Protestant and the home of the Junkers and the industrialists.

Bavaria had its own stamps, rail-

On the right is ex-Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria who is considered the logical president or regent of the proposed new nation.

Prohibition—Moral and Economic

CRITICIZING the Memphis Commercial Appeal for coming out editorially against the Eighteenth amendment yet qualifying its position with the declaration, "States now dry by state enactment will remain so," the Arkansas Gazette said Tuesday.

"But if prohibition is a complete and tragic failure," the Memphis Commercial Appeal must logically demand its repeal in Tennessee and in every other state."

The Commercial Appeal must do no such thing.

What we have discovered under nearly a decade and a half of national prohibition is that there is a wide difference in the public's attitude towards laws self-imposed here at home and laws forced upon us from the outside.

What we have discovered is that while the regulation of liquor may be a moral issue in the local community, it is in the nation at large a question of law-enforcement, a question of practical government—and therefore a question of economics.

A man gets drunk and makes a nuisance of himself on a street in a small city. Where the population is small the drunk can hardly be avoided. This is an intolerable condition—and the city votes dry.

But something else happens in a metropolitan center. If, in order to get rid of its drunks, a big city happens to vote dry—or has dryness thrust upon it—then the big city sees this happen. Officials and the police force are in time thoroughly corrupted by an illicit liquor traffic which is aided and abetted by the citizens themselves.

This, too, is an intolerable condition—and the great population centers, revolting against a latter-day evil, are sweeping the Eighteenth amendment to its doom.

And the South, having given the amendment its moral and political support for a decade and a half, is now weighing the matter of government and economics as well as morality—and is contemplating withdrawing to its original position of state control.

This is not an editorial expression. It is merely a recital of history. The editor of this paper comes of a prohibition family. He entered into his business after the passage of the Eighteenth amendment—and has never written one word for modification or repeal. The people of the South and West, the people of Arkansas, Kansas and other dry states, have reached a decision on the prohibition law unassisted by their newspapers.

The papers, I am reminded, are very much like Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana. This famous Catholic statesman was always an ardent dry. He was a dry when he presided over the Democratic national convention of 1924 in Madison Square Garden, New York. But today, presiding over the convention in Chicago, he is a wet.

Why? Senator Walsh was perfectly frank about it. When he changed over last year he said: "My constituents have gone overwhelmingly wet. I do not abandon my personal conviction—but after all I am the senator from Montana."

I don't think Senator Walsh trimmed his sails to secure re-election. Nobody who followed his career in the expose of the Republican oil scandals believes that. But the nation faces a great economic crisis. And in this crisis, prohibition has suddenly become, instead of a roaring lion, nothing but a troublesome cur, snapping at the heels of every worthwhile public program.

This, too, is an intolerable condition.

A Sane Idea

ONE of the sanest ideas to prevent improper manipulation of stocks on the stock exchange seems to be that voiced before a Senate committee the other day by Professor William Z. Ripley of Harvard who suggested that big corporations be required to open their books for public inspection.

Although this may seem, on the surface, a radical suggestion, its value becomes apparent when you stop to think of the way unscrupulous riggers of the market can and do force stock values up or down because of inside information on a company's financial condition.

The gentle custom of unloading on the suckers a big block of stock in a formerly prosperous concern which is about to pass a dividend would be a little harder to accomplish if Professor Ripley's plan were adopted.

So They Say

I am reputedly a comedian, but after seeing financial conditions of the world, I have decided I am as much an economist as financiers.—Charlie Chaplin.

I left Hollywood for one reason, because of the morality clause in my contract. They tell me, a former reporter, to be moral, and they turn out picture after picture depicting reporters as drunks and bums.—Gene Fowler, ex-scenario writer.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CHERRY and DIXIE, pretty 18-year-old daughters of wealthy parents, fall in love with DAN PHILLIPS, newspaper reporter. Dan, who is a bachelor, is a handsome fellow, and Cherry and Dixie are both beautiful. Dan, who is a bachelor, is a handsome fellow, and Cherry and Dixie are both beautiful.

They are married and for the first time Cherry finds what it means to be a wife. She is a little bit of a housewife, and Dixie is a little bit of a housewife. They are both beautiful, and Dan is a handsome fellow.

Two days later Cherry learns her mother is critically ill. Cherry goes home and her mother is in bed. Cherry is a little bit of a housewife, and Dixie is a little bit of a housewife. They are both beautiful, and Dan is a handsome fellow.

Cherry's father asks her to go with her mother but she refuses. Dan comes to the rescue and Cherry's father sees her parents off at the railroad station.

Cherry's mother is discharged when a story he has sent to a magazine is returned.

NOV GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXI
THE heat wave came. It arrived with scorching sun and days that seemed breathless from early morning until late at night. There was no breeze. Grass scorched in the parks where men and women and children, finding their lodgings unbearable, spread newspapers and slept on the ground. There was no rain—nothing to break the relentless succession of sultry days.

Dan was working longer hours. The vacation schedule was in force and the staff was short several men.

The heat wave began the second week in July. The third week came and it had not diminished. The fourth week opened and still there was no rain, no breeze, no sign of cooler weather.

Cherry seemed to wilt. She tried to keep the apartment in order, to offer Dan cool, appetizing meals but the strain began to tell on her. She grew paler than usual and her eyes were dark circles.

Letters came from her mother describing the seashore resort. Mrs. Dixon was feeling stronger. The sea air was invigorating and the hotel had proved to be a quiet, comfortable place.

It was during the third week of the heat wave that Cherry, driven by the fact that laundry bills had been mounting higher and higher, bent over the ironing board before the two open windows of the living room and tried to give Dan's shirt the same smooth finish the laundry gave it.

The door leading into the hall stood open. Cherry was dressed in a recent purchase, a 95 cent apron that served as a dress. Her hair was pushed back from her face and screwed in a knot. Her face was guileless of powder or make-up and she wore a shabby pair of shoes because they were comfortable. It was hard work ironing. She had finished three shirts and her shoulder ached but the pile of unironed garments was only half exhausted. Cherry knew she was not skilful at ironing. She was slow at it and none of the things looked quite as they should. It meant a saving of more than a dollar a week though to have the laundry delivered "rough dried."

SHE felt something against her foot and looked down. Pinky, the kitten, had been lying at full length on the floor before the window. Now he stood up, stretched, and looked at Cherry appealingly.

"What's the matter, Pinky?" she asked. "Are you hot, too?"

For answer the kitten leaped to the window seat. He settled there as though waiting for a breeze.

A voice from the doorway called, "Well, of all things to be doing on a day like this—!"

Cherry turned. "Hello, Dixie," she said. "Come in. I can't offer you a cool place to sit but that chair by the window is probably best."

Dixie dropped her bundles on the table. She wore a brilliant green silk sport dress, rumpled now and the worse for wear, a broad-brimmed straw hat with a green band around it, and sandals that matched almost but not exactly.

"Put down that iron, cherub," Dixie instructed. "Here's a pint of strawberry sherbert. It's probably half melted and if it isn't eaten right now there'll be nothing left of it. No, don't bother—I know where to get the dishes!"

She was in the kitchen already, dishing out the cool, pink mixture. Cherry turned off the electric iron. She followed Dixie to the kitchen.

"It's sweet of you to do this," Cherry said as both girls sank into chairs and began to eat the sherbert. "It's delicious!"

"Not so many calories as ice cream," the other informed her. "Not that you have to worry about them. Lord, I wish I had your figure!" Dixie took another spoonful of sherbert.

"But I'm forgetting the news!" she went on almost immediately. "Darling, I'm leaving Saturday for two weeks in Canada!"

"Oh, how wonderful!"

"Isn't it? You know I'd decided to wait until September and go to New York, but yesterday I had a wire from a girl I know in Chicago. She's taking the boat trip to Quebec and wanted me to come with her. I got all excited about the idea and went to see Bates. He said it was O. K. with him and so I wired Florence. I'm to meet her Sunday. Honestly I'm as thrilled as a kid at his first circus!"

"I should think you would be. Two weeks on a boat—oh, it sounds heavenly!"

"It's going to take my last cent," Dixie admitted matter-of-factly. "I've bought a new evening dress—white lace, don't you think that's pretty?—and a white skirt with a blue flannel jacket and a printed chiffon that will do for afternoon or evening. Wait, I'll show you—"

The new gowns were unwrapped and displayed hastily. Dixie held the white evening dress up for Cherry to admire, explaining that it really had been a wonderful bargain. Fifty-nine fifty reduced to $25.

Cherry looked down at her flimsy apron, her worn-out shoes. She pushed the hair back from her forehead. What a sight she must be! "I'll have to go on with this ironing," she said as she arose. "But don't go. Stay and tell me about your trip."

"No, it's time for me to be getting upstairs. I've a million things to do. Cherry, how on earth can you iron when it's as hot as this?"

"Dan needs the shirts," Cherry explained. "He put on the last clean one in the drawer this morning. Besides I don't seem to feel the heat any more when I'm busy than when I'm doing nothing."

"Well, there isn't a man living I'd iron shirts for today. I'll drop in again before I go. See you later."

"Thanks for the sherbert," Cherry called as the other girl disappeared. Dixie's answer was lost as she mounted the stairs.

UP and down the ironing board, up and down, Cherry's hand moved. The shirt sleeves, then the collar and then the front. A button off here. That must be sewed on before the shirt was folded away. She wiped the perspiration from her forehead, laid another shirt on the board. As the iron moved back and forth her thoughts flew to the cool white deck of a ship. Not such a ship as Dixie would sail on—an ocean liner, huge and majestic. Cherry could see white foam splashing against the blue. Gulls gliding to the surface of the water and then soaring aloft. Oh, so be on such a ship! To feel the rush of the cold wind—!

With a sudden cry she put the iron on its stand. There on the sleeve of one of Dan's newest shirts was a yellow-brown scorched spot. It was after six when Dan arrived. Cherry was putting away the last of the ironing. She had not had time to dress.

"This place is like an oven," Dan announced. "We can't eat here."

"You go somewhere if you want to," Cherry told him. "I don't feel like dressing and anyhow I'm not hungry."

"Do you good to get out. Honestly, it's smothering in here!"

Cherry protested but Dan had his way. They dined at a restaurant in the neighborhood where electric fans kept the hot air in motion. There was an odor of cooking about the place that was not appetizing.

Glorifying Yourself
GIVE YOUR HAIR A CLEAN BILL OF HEALTH
Shampooing your hair should be fun instead of drudgery. Now that summer is here you needn't wonder how long it will take to dry and gaze speculatively at the room thermometer before you begin the cleansing process. You are going to let the warm sun, the sun and the wind, combine to blow life and vibrancy into it. Hair needs sun treatment when it has been washed.

Choose a day when the wind and the sun are all mixed up together. Take your favorite shampoo and remember that there are special shampoos for oily hair and others that work wonders on dry hair—and mix it into a fluffy foaminess. Moisten your hair, unless the directions of the shampoo are definite in their orders. Then work the white foam, which looks more like so many clouds than anything else, into your scalp. Use a firm, kneading motion. Keep working until you feel the blood tingling on the surface of your scalp.

Saturate every hair on your head with the mixture. Rinse in warm water, and wash all over again. Another rinsing will carry away the last of the soap. Use water freely and abundantly. Warm water first, then cold. Let the change in temperature be gradual. Don't be afraid to let the warm water too hot. Make it as hot as you are able to stand it without burning your scalp. Here again your personal judgment will have to guide you.

Scalps react differently to hot and cold water and only experimentation will show you the wisest moves in the shampooing game.

A little lemon or vinegar added to the last rinsing water will cut any stray particles of soap that are adhering to your scalp.

Now take plenty of soft, old bath towels, find a place in your garden where you will enjoy sitting, and start to rub your hair. Remove as much of the moisture as you can. Spread your hair out, then, and let the sun and air help it dry.

After such a shampoo your muscles will be relaxed. Circulation will be improved. You will feel free and gay and happy. Signs of tension are gone. The sparkle in your eyes and the color in your cheeks will be brightened. As for your hair, it will be so fluffy and soft and shining that you will wonder why you never tried such a shampoo before.

Hair should not be shampooed too often. It destroys the normal oil supply by washing it away. Once every three or four weeks is often enough for most people, providing the hair is brushed faithfully every day and a cleansing tonic several times a week.

Coat 85 Cents To Put Rheumatic Cripple Back To Work Again

While all his family looked on in astonishment and all his friends were amazed, one man took all the pain, swelling and agony from his tortured joints in 48 hours and did it with that famous rheumatic prescription known to pharmacists as Allenru—you can do the same.

This powerful yet safe remedy is wonderful—its action is almost magical.

Just get one 85 cent bottle of Allenru from Bryant's Drug Store or any live druggist—take it as directed and if in 48 hours your pains haven't all left you get your money back.

It works just as swiftly with Neuritis, Sciatica, Lumbago and Neuralgia.

BAVARIA THREATENS

voids holders and other important national functions until after the World War. Bavaria and other German states look with alarm at the proposed agrarian policy of the Hitler-controlled government under "Crown Prince William's" prospective regime. They see in the proposed new government a combination which would give them no voice in federal matters. They are not willing to see this take place, and they are not likely to sit quietly by and allow their part in the German picture becomes a minor one.

The French attitude
 Two other factors make the separation step seem more than an idle dream. One is the attitude of France, which would hardly raise any voice of protest against the weakening of a traditional foe.

Secession of Bavaria, Baden and Wurttemberg would reduce the population of Germany by one-fifth and its area by one-fourth. It would also remove the French bugaboo of a union between Germany and Austria, since Bavaria has been far more closely bound to Austria by tradition than Prussia.
 The second factor is the personal popularity of Prince Rupprecht and the Wittelsbach line, of which he is the heir. A Wittelsbach ruled over Bavaria for more than seven centuries before the fortunes of the World War sent King Ludwig, father of Prince Rupprecht, scurrying into Austria to escape possible harm at the hands of the men who had overthrown the German empire in November, 1918.

Rupprecht's Record
 Rupprecht's war record and his conduct since returning to Bavaria have added considerably to his chances. Born in Munich May 18, 1869, the little crown prince of Bavaria entered the army as a subaltern in 1886 and in 1918 had advanced to a place as inspector-general of all Bavarian forces.

When the World War began, he was appointed to the command of the Sixth German Army in Lorraine. Later in 1914, he had charge of German forces at the bloody first battle of Ypres. He continued in important posts throughout the war and German historians now admit that he handled his troops capably.

As early as 1918 he foresaw German defeat and begged his father to ask the Kaiser to make peace with Russia before victory became impossible. After the war, he went for a time to Austria, but returned to Munich when the Communist government there fell, and there he has remained since.

Unlike the sons of the ex-Kaiser, he has remained aloof from politics. He lives simply in the family palace and confines his public appearances principally to attending reunions of Bavarian soldiers, in whom he is very much interested. A large part of the income from his huge personal fortune has gone to make the lot of the ex-soldier an easier one.

And if Bavaria does secede from the German union, there seems little doubt that Rupprecht will be president or regent of the new state, just as he desires.

BANKER OF CHICAGO

years later he was admitted to the bar.

In 1904 he was elected assistant county attorney. When his term expired he got a job in a little bank at Malone, Tex. He was given the title of "assistant cashier"—but he was also janitor and nightwatchman.

Traylor progressed as a banker and in 1907 he was made cashier of the Citizens' Bank of Ballinger, Tex. By that time he knew the cattle business perhaps as well as any man thereabouts. So it followed that in 1911 when the Stock Yards Exchange National Bank of East St. Louis, Ill., needed a vice president it called in the young bank cashier from the cow country with whom it had done much business.

His reputation as a cattle banker increased and in 1916 the Live Stock Exchange National Bank of Chicago called him for a job as vice president. Two years later he was promoted to president.

In 1919 Traylor left Chicago's stockyards for the loop to become president of the First Trust and Savings Bank. Later the First National Bank acquired this and the Union Trust as well. Naturally enough, Traylor was made president of the consolidated institutions.

Two years after he went to Malone to become a banker Traylor married Miss Dorothy Arnold Yerby of Hillsboro. They have three children, Nancy, Frances and Melvin. A. J. whose pictures hang over his desk in the First National Bank here. The Traylor home, a two-story frame building, is in keeping with their simplicity.

In addition to his banking activities, he has been president of the board of trustees of Northwestern University, president of the United States Golf Association, president of the American Bankers' Association and has held other big jobs. He is a director in numerous large corporations and a member of numerous clubs.

In 1929 he was one of the two Americans named on a committee of bankers and statesmen to set up the Bank of International Settlements, that vast financial organization formed in Europe to handle Germany's reparations payments to the world.

Out of this background has grown the Traylor boom for president. As to how it started and what's behind it—your guess is as good as anyone's.

dollars, the state of Arkansas alone owing $215,000,000.

"I propose, if elected senator, to cast my vote for the establishment of international bimetallism; the repeal of the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill; and the scientific revision of the tariff on the basis of competitive costs, a 20 per cent reduction in the cost of administering the federal government, federal aid to schools in their elementary grades, and a continuation of the present policy of adding good roads construction. If the government can appropriate millions of dollars for cattle-dipping, hog vaccination, and the purchase of white rats, it can certainly supplement state appropriations to save our schools, over 700 of which closed their doors in Arkansas last year," said the senatorial candidate.

Dr. Brough called attention to the fact that he would be 56 years of age July 9, 1932 and was in the prime of his physical and mental powers. He stated that he had not received nor would he accept any corporate contributions to his campaign fund, making the race on four paid-up insurance policies, aggregating $3,500.

Dr. Brough expressed confidence of victory on August 9th, saying that thus far Mrs. Brough and he had contacted every voting precinct in 72 counties, having traveled 13,800 miles in their Buick sedan since the opening of his campaign March 9.

There's nothing like a birthday party when one is from four to eight and the weather is fine. The wife mother will welcome the chance to entertain small guests out of doors even if the weather is hot for parties.

Since most small persons nap every afternoon, why not plan to have the party from three to five or four to six in the afternoon, depending on the age of the host or hostess and the guests? If the latter hour is chosen time is allowed for the simple birthday supper before the early bedtime. If

Earlier hour is preferred ice cream and cake can be served when the guests arrive without "spilling the regular supper at home."

The following menu is suggested for a supper party:

Chilled Fruit Juice
 Peas in Mashed Potato Cakes
 Ice Cream Candy Cake

The fruit juice is merely orange juice made pink with raspberry juice and not too cold. Four tablespoons served in punch glasses make an adequate appetizer for small persons.

When preparing the toast for the creamed chicken cut it in half inch squares after toasting and before covering with the chicken. The squares are easy to eat and require no difficult fuffing for tiny hands.

The peas are most attractive served in nests of mashed potato and mean no particular fussing for the mother when serving the plates. Aside from this, they are sure to appeal to children.

Whole wheat bread and butter sandwiches cut in fancy shapes could be served with this course but are not necessary since toast is used.

Then—Ice Cream and Cake
 No party is complete without ice cream and cake with candles. Sponge cake with a thin icing and plain vanilla ice cream are most suitable for children although any simple cake and ice cream made not too rich may be used as preferred. Most children choose chocolate ice cream when they are allowed their choice and this is quite suitable for a festive occasion.

If the party does not include supper try serving the refreshments either when the guests arrive or about four o'clock. Games after the little luncheon will help bring the appetite back to normal for the regular meal. Many mothers serve a four o'clock luncheon to their children in any event.

Lemonade and sandwiches with cookies cut in fancy shapes or ice cream and cake are always loved by children and can't hurt them. Don't serve both the sandwiches and ice cream.

These suggestions for sandwich fillings may help you.

and put Senator Thomas J. Waters of Montana in the permanent chairmanship of the war-relief committee.

But although commanding a majority vote, Governor Roosevelt is still only 100 of having the two-thirds required to nominate.

The battle will be between the Roosevelt and anti-Roosevelt men as to which can hold their forces together longest.

There is still a possibility of a first-ballot nomination, however. Roosevelt men claim that the 600-odd votes they captured on Tuesday's tests, did not reveal their war strength. They claim to have the necessary two-thirds in voting on the presidential nomination alone—a claim which is disputed by Smith, Raskob, Baker, Murray and other contending camps, who have come to be known as the "Stop-Roosevelt Allies."

The only other real marquise in business here is the Marquise de San Carlos who not long ago became a milliner.

place will tell you why Ritchie is sure to win. National Committeeman Howard Bruce Ritchie, backer, comes in often and the governor himself is no man to neglect his own headquarters all the time.

Garner's Flag
Speaker Garner's quarters, mostly in a long room decorated with fine period furniture, are the next largest and you can't see the walls for American flags, star-spangled bunting and "John Nance Garner for President" lithographs.

You can get buttons and full-length biographies of Jack, Congressman Sam Rayburn of Texas, is in charge, with J. P. Shannon, Texas oil producer, doing much of the greeting.

Next down the hall is the headquarters of Governor Harry Byrd of Virginia, where you usually find General Billy Mitchell and Colonel Henry Breckinridge, Lindbergh's friend and adviser. Also leaflets especially advertising Byrd's prohibition referendum plan and walls quite covered by such six-foot-tall messages as "Byrd the Farmer is a Worthy Successor to George Washington." Byrd, the Logical Leader of the Post-War Generation in the Full Tide of a Strong Manhood—the same age as Theodore Roosevelt when he became president.

Al Smith's headquarters, next door, are not so pretentious—just a couple of good-sized hotel rooms—but with several attractive girls to hand, you pamphlets and folders, one of the latter including a mean story from the Nation about Roosevelt. As in all other headquarters, the big lithographs of Al do no injustice to their subject.

In charge is Joseph Israel, the very youthful son of the famous Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, a boy who used to be a radio operator at sea and has written a couple of books. Mrs. Moskowitz may be there, too, but she is more likely to be with Al—a pleasant, short, plump, Jewish woman with a reputation for sagacity and humanitarian effort.

Jim Reed of Missouri, being taken more seriously by someone than anyone expected, has a couple of large rooms and the boisterous glare of old Jim gazes down on you from many a big lithograph.

Ann Plane at Target

WASHINGTON—Major Gerald E. Brower, of the U. S. Army Air Corps, has developed an arrangement whereby an airplane can be aimed at a gunnery target. A hinged flap behind the pilot's head is raised when the gunners are about to be fired and centers the pilot's head with the ship. His eyes are then focused on a small spot on the windshield, which is on the direct fore-and-aft center line of the plane.

The high heel was thought of by a woman who was kissed on the forehead.

New "First Lady" of France, Modern

Mme. Lebrun One of the Most Informative Women in the World

By ARLAIDE BROWN

PARIS—(AP)—The modern and refined Mme. Lebrun, who has been called the most informative woman in the world, has stepped into it as first lady of the land.

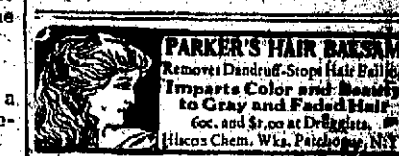

The new hostess of the palace in which the glamorous Empress, Josephine once presided, keeps up-to-date by modern methods. She refuses to devote her entire day to problems of the palace, for she has kept abreast of affairs since her day left the National School of Mines, which her father directed, to marry the future president of France.

She speaks English and is fond of both British and American literature. She maintains a wide interest in archeology which she studied at the School of Mines. She loves music and slips away to a concert whenever she has the chance.

Between times she finds a few hours for charitable undertakings and to keep up with educational affairs.

Her 8-months old grandson, Pierre, and 3-year old granddaughters, Anna Marie, are her delight. They spend hours at the Luxembourg Palace when their grandmother presided there as wife of the president of the senate. Friends predict that the young girls will be seen frequently in the imposing salons of the Elysee Palace.

Their mother is Mme. Pierre Frey-Linard, daughter of President and Mme. Lebrun. The Frey-Linard home is on the "left bank."

it takes everything

"Aim Is Only 10% of Billiards"

"True aim is only the starting point of a billiard champion," says the wizard of 18.2 ballline. "Eye—to guide that aim; nerves—to keep it steady under stress; touch and timing—to control it; endurance—to combat fatigue; and above all, a chess brain—to see ahead and plan accordingly; all these are equally essential. To get your name in the record-book, you've got to have everything!"

Jake Schaefer

TAKE a cue from Jake Schaefer, Jr.

Real gasoline must have everything, too. To be gum free is not enough. To be free from sulphur is not enough. To be low priced is not enough.

If it causes excessive carbon deposits you are likely to pay for it twice. Once at the pump and again for needless carbon jobs in the repair shop.

1932 gasoline must have everything.

"Standard" 1932 gasoline has everything.

It gives quick starting for traffic jams. Smooth and silent power when you need it. Added miles of low-cost, trouble-free transportation. Keeps your car out of repair shop. Saves you money.

Read the list at the right, Check it. It spells savings. A sweet engine. Next time you buy gasoline buy "Standard."

It has everything a real gasoline should have.

"STANDARD" 1932 GASOLINE has everything!

- ✓ CARBON-LESS—Spark plugs, pistons, cylinders and valves stay clean. Saves repair bills.
 - ✓ GUM-LESS—No clogged manifolds—no sticky valves. Cuts repair bills.
 - ✓ SULPHUR-LESS—No corrosion. Saves repair bills.
 - ✓ ANTI-KNOCK—Extra power, less noise, less upkeep cost through reduced hammering of pistons and bearings. Cuts repair bills.
 - ✓ QUICK STARTING—Minimum use of choke—quick power and pick-up—less contamination of crankcase oil.
 - ✓ "BUBBLE-FREE"—No stalling and bucking from vapor bubbles in gas line and carburetor—even, steady flow of power in the hottest motor.
 - ✓ ODOR-LESS—Refined "sweet"—no disagreeable smells.
 - ✓ CRYSTAL CLEAR—Made clear—stays clear—a guarantee of perfect cleanliness. Saves money.
 - ✓ UNIFORM—Same quality and results all ways, everywhere. Always more miles for your money.

Carnival Hot Springs

Hot Springs Races to Hurry Week-End
Holiday

Hot Springs, Ark., leading on board the carnival, Arkansas and neighboring states, will furnish many thrills and amusement for spectators at a three-day carnival of boat races and water sports, sponsored by the Hot Springs Boat Association for July 7, 8 and 9, at Gilliam's Landing on Lake
Cushman.

July 7, 1933, has been named Shrine
Day. Festivities will start at 8
a. m. at the Shrine, when the carnival is accompanied by the 60-piece carnival band and patrol will arrive here to participate in the activities of the day. Invitations have gone out to two thousand Shriners. Shrine day will be topped off with a Shrine banquet.

Many exciting moments are in store for those who participate and witness the regatta. According to Judge Verne
S. Ledgerwood, general chairman, the three-day program will include races for funboats, for surfboards and for canoes, B and C hydroplanes, swimming and diving contests for which there will be cash prizes, special prizes and trophies.

The daily schedule to be followed is as follows: The first affair of the carnival will be the regatta, on the local water, when all the craft of the local clubs, including the Hamilton, will participate in the water at Gilliam's Landing. This will be an interesting affair, and a crowd of spectators is expected to be present.

Cash prizes will be given for the following: Five mile regatta, first prize $50, second $25, third $10, and fourth $5. Class C race, first prize $25, second $10, third $5,
and fourth $2.50.

The railroads have granted special rates for the occasion.

"Light One for ME"

It's pretty hard to be around a Chesterfield and not want one. That tempting aroma tells you the truth. It says... "Here's a milder cigarette. Here's one that tastes better."

Sure... there's a good reason. Several, in fact. Chesterfields contain the finest tobaccos grown.

These tobaccos are not only blended, they're cross-blended in Chesterfield's own special way.

They are rolled in the purest paper that money can buy. Grown right. Cured right.
Blended right. Made right. Packed right.
That's Chesterfield.

In fact, there isn't any way for a cigarette to be purer, milder or better tasting.

No wonder so many millions of smokers say "THEY SATISFY."
